Stuck In Your Home? Swap It (CBS News with Katie Couric)

With two kids, Melissa Petrocco and her husband needed more space, but couldn't move until they sold their 1,900-square-foot townhouse outside Atlanta. CBS News correspondent Kelly Wallace reports that it sat on the market for nearly two years.

"We really thought in this market, we're going to be here forever," Petrocco said. Watch video and read entire article...

Stumped home sellers look to make a trade

By Jane Hodges

updated 1:22 p.m. ET, Wed., March. 4, 2009

Blynda and Leonard Masters wanted to buy a bigger home in Jacksonville, Fla., so they could entertain more and host extended family. Like many would-be home buyers in this market, however, they faced an increasingly common financing problem: They couldn't borrow to buy a new property until they sold their old one.
